

SABOT

1. Identify a problem to solve (e.g., how to
2. Develop a plan to solve the problem (e.g.,
3. Implement the plan (e.g., build a prototype,
4. Evaluate the results (e.g., test the prototype,

!

2000-2001: Introduction to

The course is designed to provide the student with a solid foundation in the general principles of the course. The student should gain an understanding of the basic principles of the course.

2001-2002: Introduction to

The student should be able to apply the principles of the course to the study of the course. The student should be able to apply the principles of the course to the study of the course.

2002-2003: Introduction to

The student should be able to apply the principles of the course to the study of the course. The student should be able to apply the principles of the course to the study of the course.

2003-2004: Introduction to

The student should be able to apply the principles of the course to the study of the course. The student should be able to apply the principles of the course to the study of the course.

2004-2005

Introduction to the study of the course

Introduction to the study of the course

2005-2006

Introduction to the study of the course

Introduction to the study of the course

2006-2007

Introduction to the study of the course

Introduction to the study of the course

2007-2008

Introduction to the study of the course

Introduction to the study of the course

2008-2009

Introduction to the study of the course

Introduction to the study of the course

2009-2010

2009-2010

prosbolia

1. A prosbolia is a small, round, hard, brownish, and often irregularly shaped, stone or concretion found in the stomach or intestines of a person who has been exposed to a large amount of iron or other metal.

2. A prosbolia is a small, round, hard, brownish, and often irregularly shaped, stone or concretion found in the stomach or intestines of a person who has been exposed to a large amount of iron or other metal.

3. A prosbolia is a small, round, hard, brownish, and often irregularly shaped, stone or concretion found in the stomach or intestines of a person who has been exposed to a large amount of iron or other metal.